MAYOR DENNY DOYLE STATEMENT ON DEATH OF BEAVERTON CITY COUNCILOR BRUCE DALRYMPLE

BEAVERTON, Oregon (April 8, 2010) – Statement from Beaverton Mayor Denny Doyle on the passing of City Councilor Bruce Dalrymple:

“It was with great sadness that we learned that Bruce lost his courageous battle with cancer,” said Mayor Denny Doyle. “Bruce was a dear friend and I will not only miss his friendship, but truly, we will all miss his leadership as an extraordinary public servant. However, we will not lose sight of his vision and dreams for Beaverton. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the Dalrymple family as they cope with this tremendous loss.”

Councilor Dalrymple succumbed to cancer on April 7, 2010, while surrounded by his family. Memorial services are pending and will be announced at a later date.

Councilor Dalrymple was a member of Beaverton’s City Council since 2006 and served as Council President in 2009. He was also a liaison to the Beaverton Arts Commission, the Budget Committee, the Sister Cities Board, Beaverton’s Committee for Citizen Involvement, the Human Rights Advisory Commission and the Library Advisory Board. In addition, Dalrymple was an active board member of the Tualatin Hills Park and Recreation District (THPRD) for nearly 20 years. In addition to his duties as a Director and Executive Vice President at Touchmark, his community activities also included the Beaverton Rotary as well as Washington County’s Land Use Advisory Committee and Planning Commission. Dalrymple was a graduate of Portland State University, where he held a Bachelor of Science in Biology and a Certificate in Public Health Studies and Administration.
